

FABER-CASTELL

since 1761

DESIGN

TRADITION AND PROGRESS

1761 Kaspar Faber makes the first Bleyweissstift pencils in a small workshop. 1840 Lothar von Faber lends his name to the pencils, sets standard lengths, diameters and grades of lead hardness that are still in use today, and pencils into a high quality product and the first branded writing implement in the world. 1849 The first overseas branches are founded in

New York, London and Paris. 1898 Baroness Ottilie von Faber marries Count Alexander zu Castell-Rüdenhausen. The company takes on the name Faber-Castell. 1905 Count

Alexander von Faber-Castell develops the legendary Castell 9000. This pencil, with its distinctive form, continues to enjoy international success today.

1928 Count  Roland von Faber-Castell takes over the management of the company. He acquires a controlling interest in the company Lapis-Johann-Faber

S./A. in Brazil, which is now the world's biggest lead and coloured pencil factory. By establishing international branches and sales divisions, Faber-Castell develops into the world's leading manufacturer of wooden lead and coloured pencils. 1978

Count Anton W. von Faber-Castell is the eighth generation to take over the management of the family company. He places an increased emphasis on new products (incl. cosmetic pencils) and expands the company's international activities with the aim of positioning Faber-Castell as a global brand.
